Introduction

Theodicy and the Infinite Possible Worlds Hypothesis	9
---	---

I. Possible Concepts and Conatus	29
I.1 Divine Unity and the Origin of Possibilities	29
I.1.1 Real Definition of God	29
I.1.2 From Divine Mind to Diverse Possibilities	30
I.2 A Complete Individual Concept Consists of All Compossible Propositions	36
I.2.1 Real Definition of an Individual Contains All Compatible Predicates	36
I.2.2 Verae Propositionis = Praedicatum inest Subjecto	40
I.2.3 Possibilities versus Reality	43
I.3 Leibniz's Concept of Conatus	47
I.3.1 Possibilities Are Not Indifferent to Existence and Non-existence	47
I.3.2 Conatus: Not a Self-actualizing Power	48
I.3.3 Inherent Series and External Series	56
I.3.4 True Unity	58
I.4 Possibility and Potentiality	63
I.4.1 Aristotle: Possibilities are based on the essences of substances	68
I.4.2 Avicenna: Possibilities are Grounded in the Nature of God (Averroes) ...	74
I.4.3 Al-Ghazālī: Possibilities are Grounded in Divine Understanding (Aquinas, Duns Scotus)	85
I.4.4 Different Groundings of Possibilities	101
II. Leibniz's Concept of Compossibility	104
II.1 Logical Independency (Non-contradictory)	105
II.2 Logical Entailment and Causal Relationship	111
II.3 Atoms and Continuity	131
II.3.1 Al-Ghazālī on Temporal Atoms	131
II.3.2 Leibniz on Continuity	135
II.4 A Possible World is a Maximal Set of Compossible Propositions	163

II.4.1	Why A World Must Consist Of "Maximal" Compossibles	168
II.4.2	God's Eternity and Omniscience	171
II.4.3	Divine Will and the Existence of Evil	175
II.4.4	Necessary Existential Propositions	178
II.4.5	The Internal Time and External Time	181
II.4.6	Different Understandings of Possible Worlds	186
III.	Leibniz on the Pre-established Curve and Infinitesimal Calculus	190
III.1	The Pre-established Curve	192
III.2	The Locus and the Singularities: World History	203
III.3	The Circulus Osculans and the Centre of Expression	223
III.4	The Problem of Infinity	242
III.5	Structuring the Cosmos: Bounds and Potentials	251
III.5.1	Impossibility: the Tangent Line of the Pre-established Curve	253
III.5.2	Compossibility: the Integral of the Pre-established Curve	257
III.6	The Best Possible World	262
III.6.1	Necessary Best World or Several Equally Perfect Worlds	269
III.6.2	On Better Worlds and Accidents within them	275
